Newsletter No 114

You can now listen to my blogs!

This week I finally found some time to add some updates to my website. One of those updates was to add a text-to-speech plugin to my blog articles. For those who are interested, I used Trinity Audio. This means that now you can listen to the blogs if you don't want to read them (or can't read them for some reason). I'm pretty happy with the result. It's supposed to sound like an Australian man's voice which I think is pretty close to the real thing. Have a listen to the below examples from my blog and see what you think for yourself.
